Practice Tests

THE TEST-DAY REHEARSAL SYSTEM

Five full-length rehearsals. One repeatable test-day routine.

A full-length test builds what section practice cannot: pacing, stamina, answer transfer, and recovery between sections. Five simulations follow the published paper-test order and timing — the Writing Sample and all four scored sections — and each one feeds a three-day

One Test, Three Days

Day 1: the whole simulation in one sitting, strictly timed. Day 2: score it, sort every miss by type, run the vocabulary quiz. Day 3: repair only your two weakest types —

→ Why scores fall — pacing, format, traps — needs three different fixes, and only one of them is "study more".

Section-specific explanations

Reading cites the evidence line and shows why the others are wrong; Verbal defines words and states bridges; Quantitative shows the route, the check, and the trap.

→ Explanations that answer the question that matters most: "Why was I wrong?"

Review Dashboard

Scores by section, time used, cause codes (K·T·M·R·P·G), and the 48-hour and 7-day retests — score → cause → repair → retest.

→ Five tests become one visible trend, and the minutes that leak are named.
